What the public works program means to the county was explained yesterday by Supervisor James N. Long of this supervisorial district in a letter to the editor of the RECORD-HERALD.

Long's letter was as follows: Editor, Richmond Record-Herald, Richmond, Calif.

November 27, 1933. Please permit me, through the medium of your paper, to explain to the general public, a very important matter, the government's policy with reference to the employment of men under the direction of the civil works program. Members of the club, who faithfully deposited certain sums each week in the local bank, are receiving checks from $12.50 to $1000 to be spent this Christmas.

The early release of the sums will enable members to do their Christmas shopping early, adding impetus to the "Buy Now—Buy in Richmond" campaign.

Old and new members for the 1934 Christmas club are also being enrolled now.

Radio Priest Lauds F. D. R.'s Money Policy

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—UP.—Fifteen thousand New Yorkers fought in Sixth avenue tonight for the opportunity to hear Father Charles Coughlin, crusading priest speak in defense of the Roosevelt administration's monetary policy.

Women were trampled as thousands tried unsuccessfully to storm the New York Hippodrome, where the cleric delivered his address.

The meeting was advertised as a project "in support of President Roosevelt's sound money policy."

PARDONS PROMISED LYNCHERS

MAXIE SETTLES BALM ACTION

Rolph Lauds Lynch Mob; Funeral For Hart Is Conducted

SAN JOSE, Nov. 27.—UP.—California's vigilante spirit was in full flame today as citizens of San Jose, militantly backed by Governor James Rolph, Jr., harked back to the state's early day treatment of criminals to justify the lynching last night of the two men who kidnaped and killed Brooke Hart.

GOVERNOR ISSUES STATEMENT

"They did a good job," Governor Rolph said, referring to the lynch mob as "fine, patriotic citizens."

He suggested that it would be a good idea to "parole" all kidnapers now held in California prisons into the custody of the San Jose citizens.

The governor not only condoned the action of the mob which lynched Thomas Thurmond and Jack Holmes in St. James Park, but praised them.

"I don't think anyone will be arrested down there," he said, "but if they are I'll pardon them. There'll be less kidnapping in the country as a result of this. It was the only way to give a lesson to the country."

Take Law

"It's about time the people in their homes have a little peace and comfort. It's gotten so bad since the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby that mothers are afraid to let their children go outside their homes to play."

"With such a condition it is only natural that people will take the law in their own hands. After all, the people make the laws. I think this will serve as a lesson in every state in the Union."

Governor Rolph said that he had planned, last night, to leave for Boise, Idaho, but that he had cancelled the trip because he feared that in his absence, someone might have called out the national guard to handle the San Jose mob.

Hanged by Mob

"As it was," he added, "there was no loss of life with the exception of the two men hanged."

Holmes and Thurmond died grotesquely, hanging from the elm trees of St. James Park. The mob of 10,000 persons, led by a resolute band of about 100 men and boys, turned the San Jose jail into a shambles in order to get at the two men. They overpowered Sheriff William Knig and a large force of deputies before dragging Holmes and Thurmond into the park.

The fire of the crowd swelled to a breaking point several hours after the broken body of Hart was found floating in the San Francisco bay by duck hunters. The crowd which avenged his death.

Vera L. Lavenus vs. Louis Lavenus. Mrs. Lavenus asks the custody of minor children and $30 a month. She charges cruelty.

Ann Anderson vs. John Anderson. Mrs. Anderson charges desertion.

TONY CATALDI TELLS STORY OF LYNCHING

The following story by an 18 year old ranch boy who claimed he was the leader of the Holmes-Thurmond lynching mob was told to Robert C. Elliott, special United Press correspondent, one of a staff of men on duty at San Jose.

By Anthony Cataldi

(Copyright 1933 by United Press) SAN JOSE, Calif., Nov. 27.—UP.—I was the first one of the gang to break into the jail.

I came to town in the afternoon and saw the crowd around the jail and heard that Brooke Hart's body had been found. I decided to organize a necktie party. I went out to my father's ranch on Capital Avenue and got some rope for the hanging.

Then I went all over town in my flannel rooster and passed out the word: "We're going to have a lynching at the jail at 11 o'clock tonight."

Eleven o'clock was the deadline. I told everyone. Mostly I went to the speakeasies and rounded up the gang there. That is why so many of the mob were drunk.

We had the word passed over all the streets of San Jose. So that night the mob ran streaming around the jail. We made three attempts to batter the door. The tear gas poured out and got some of the boys down.

But it was worse on the officers inside.

But when we broke into the jail (Continued on Page Eight)

Letter Writer Is Trapped By Police, Deputy

SALINAS, Nov. 27.—UP.—Prod Schellenberg, 48, was held in jail today on charges of sending obscene letters to daughters of seven leading families of Salinas.

Sheriff Carl Abbott, and Special Investigator J. P. McLaughlin had been working on the case for a month. They said they lured Schellenberg to a meeting place Saturday night and alleged that he admitted writing the letters.

Postal authorities planned to file federal charges Tuesday or for the support. She charges cruelty.

WEBB RULES NO DRINKS FOR HOTELS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—UP.—The California liquor control law, effective upon formal repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, definitely prohibits drinking or serving hard liquor in cafes, restaurants and hotel dining rooms.

Attorney General U. S. Webb, held tonight in a final opinion.

The ruling was given at request of Fred Stewart, member of the State Board of Equalization. It reaffirmed an earlier opinion.

Hotel men, who are initiating a petition for a vote on liberalizing the law, had hoped they would be permitted to serve liquor to guests, if the guests brought the liquor.

"I have studied the law from every possible angle," said Webb, "and the law seems to be clear."

Under its provisions the mere drinking of liquor by a patron in any public eating place will be sufficient grounds for the arrest of the owner or manager, and for the revocation of its beer and wine license.

"The law specifically states that no hard liquor may be bought, sold or consumed in a public eating place. It is impossible to put any other interpretation on that than the one I have made."

Raymond Merck, noble grand, presided over the meeting. Announcement was made that the second degree will be held when the lodge meets next Monday night at the hall. Every member has been urged to attend the session.

Following last night's meeting refreshments were served by the social committee headed by R. W. Fiddler.

Stock Yards Employes on New Walk Out

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—UP.—The largest live stock market in the world was a scene of riotous confusion tonight as officials and "white collar" employes labored to clear the yards of 75,000 head of stock.

The condition was caused by a strike of 6,000 workers of the Union Stockyards, and was only slightly relieved by an agreement permitting employes of the livestock exchange to unload and market the huge west-end shipments which jammed the yards.

Thousands of head of cattle were suffering from lack of food or water.

Trading continued on the exchange floor late tonight and may continue tomorrow, but the agreement will not apply to stock received tomorrow.

Boy Wounded in Air Rifle Duel

FRESNO, Nov. 27.—UP.—John Sinclair, 12, and William Fox, 12, fought a "friendly duel" with air rifles at 20 paces and William had a bad gash in his forehead as a result today.

John and his "second" took the wounded duelist to an emergency hospital, where both principals were reprimanded by police and sent home.

Men Start At Work on Projects

A large number of county men have been placed to work on civil works projects, it was announced yesterday.

Every attempt will be made to push the work, it was announced. Ed Hoffman, city engineer in charge of the work here declared that registration of men is progressing rapidly and that more than 300 men are expected to be at work in Richmond this morning.

In El Cerrito registrations were reported as progressing slowly.

Baer Pays To Avoid Girl Suit

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 27.—UP.—Max Baer, boxer, and screen Letha Baer, has evaded trial of a $250,000 breach of promise suit by payment out of court. It was announced here tonight by his attorney, Clifford Russell.

Russell would not reveal the sum paid Olive Beck, Livermore waitress and plaintiff in the suit. He said it was a "substantial sum."

"Baer will have to fight several rounds to make it up," said Russell.

"The settlement was 'satisfactory to both parties,' Russell said.

The case was to have been tried in superior court here tomorrow.

Eclipse Lodge Will Elect New Officers Monday

The first degree was conferred on a candidate last night when Eclipse Lodge of Odd Fellows held their meeting at the U. O. O. Temple on Tenth street.

Raymond Merck, noble grand, presided over the meeting. Announcement was made that the second degree will be held when the lodge meets next Monday night at the hall. Every member has been urged to attend the session.

Following last night's meeting refreshments were served by the social committee headed by R. W. Fiddler.

Liquor Codes Are Signed by Mr. Roosevelt

WARM SPRINGS, Nov. 27.—UP.—President Roosevelt tonight signed the code providing for temporary control of the liquor industry.

Announcement of Mr. Roosevelt's action was contained in a formal statement from the "Little White House" soon after he had conferred with Secretary Wallace.

"I have approved the code of fair competition for the distilling industry," the President wrote. "Of course it devolves upon Congress to determine what legislation it wishes to enact as to control of liquor traffic and protection of states that wish to remain dry."

K. C. Council In Plans For Benefit Whist

With Thomas Smith presiding, Contra Costa council No. 2741, Knights of Columbus met last night in Memorial hall to lay plans for approaching events.

It was decided that a charity whist party will be held by the group on or about December 15 at Rodeo. The affair will be for the benefit of a member of the lodge who is now ill and in a needy condition.

Members were asked to be present at the quarterly communion which will be held on Sunday at St. John's church. Mass will be at eight o'clock. Breakfast will be at Knott's Place. Members of the Knights, the Young Ladies Institute and the Young Men's Institute will attend in a body.

Father Michael Crotty, chaplain of the lodge, told the members of Thanksgiving. His extended talk was thoroughly enjoyed.

Paving Project to Start December 15

The Peninsula Paving company, recently awarded the contract for the paving the center strip of San Pablo avenue through El Cerrito, will start work on December 15.

Rails along the avenue will be removed on December 11 it was stated by the Key System.

Woman Will Face Drunk Charges

Charged with driving while drunk Mrs. Hazel Ross, 29, of 1320 Nielson street, Berkeley, will appear before Police Judge C. A. Odell on Monday for hearing.

The woman was picked up by Richmond police early Sunday morning. She has been released on $250 bail.

9 MEMBERS OF MOB TO BE SOUGHT

Names of the suspects never have been revealed. They were ordered arrested by Attorney General W. Lane, several days ago.

Order Arrest

The attorney general claimed he had sufficient evidence to warrant their arrest.

States Attorney John B. Robbins at Princess Anne refused to carry out Lane's orders contending that the arrest would be "an incorrect procedure." Robbins contended that the lynching first should be investigated by a grand jury and arrest made only in the event and by the authority of indictments from that body.

He sided with the attorney general in the view that a grand jury investigation might be only "white wash."

Differ With Rolph In ordering out the troops, the governor took an opposite stand on lynching to that taken by Governor Rolph of California, who approved the lynching at San Jose, Calif., of the kidnapers and slayers of Brooke Hart and promise pardons for members of the mob if they were convicted on charge growing out of the case.

Following last night's meeting refreshments were served by the social committee headed by R. W. Fiddler.

Man Sentenced on Theft Count Here

Alva F. Moore, 40, an itinerant, was sentenced to serve 90 days in the county jail yesterday when he appeared before Police Judge C. A. Odell.

Moore was arrested after he had allegedly attempted to sell articles of clothing to Police Inspector George Bengley. Moore, in his salesmanship, did not know that Bengley was a member of the police department.

Moore had recently been released from the county jail, after serving twenty days for the theft of an overcoat from an auto in this city.

The Standard Feed and Fuel nine's overwhelming defeat of the Palace Markets Sunday at El Cerrito came as a distinct surprise to even their most ardent followers. The feeders clicked like a well oiled machine, no errors were made, and baschits were delivered at opportune moments.

From the lips of none other than Manager Tommie De Fabio of the Ben Maliks is word out that the Maliks are raring to go after the crown in the City Basketball League. De Fabio believes he has a better five than the club of last year. It must be remembered that little Tommie's hoopsters lost the city championship in a thrilling playoff match.

The local tennis tournament to be held off in the near future should provide plenty of competition for ambitious racket wielders. There will be lots of prizes in both the doubles and singles matches. Most of the games will be played on the Civic Center courts but it is possible to hold matches on the West Side courts should a player desire and obtain the official O. K. of the tournament committee.

Should the Richmond Yacht Club put over their announced plan of starting a "sailee" on New Year's Eve, the spectacle will, no doubt, furnish a picturesque sight. Imagine a group of sail boats carefully bending their way down the Richmond inner harbor under cover of the moon. The starter's pistol, one minute after twelve, will lend color in itself.

The A's Cigars were "basehit crazy" at Berkeley Sunday. They crushed the Langendorf Royals by a score of 16 to 3. Every member of the team collected two or more blows with McCoy and Scarcella leading the attack by pounding four singles in six tries. A total of 25 bingles rattled off the local players' bats.

Don Bignall turned in a sensational play at North Seventh street Sunday, for the Lambrechts when he came charging in full speed after a low liner. He completed the catch only to go head over heels and drop the ball. Despite failure to hang onto the ball he was given a tremendous ovation.

Play in the local city basketball league will start the first part of December according to an announcement from the offices of City Recreational Director I. W. Hill today.

Speaking Of Sports

MOSCOW, Nov. 27.—Specialization in sports, with a view to producing champions, finally has been sanctioned by the Supreme Council of Physical Culture.

A recent council session ordered reorganization of the existing physical culture clubs, with a view to intensifying their activities and giving the individual more scope, for development.

The Greek sporting ideal still remains as the standard. That ideal calls for a harmonious, well-balanced physical development, rather than the over-emphasizing of any one set of muscles for specialized purposes.

All the same, certain compromises now will be allowed. Special schools to perfect themselves in some one sport. There is general recognition that in avoiding specialization Soviet sport has tended to a certain dull amateurishness.

The council stated that there now are $5,000,000 men and women taking part in physical culture ac-

IN LAST GAME

By UNITED PRESS

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 27.—UP—Determined to finish their season with victory before a homecoming day crowd here Thursday, Gonzaga's Bulldogs began their last stretch of preparation for Idaho here this afternoon. The Bulldogs finally hit their stride and uncovered their scoring punch one week ago against Columbia. The cry "stop Willis Smith" is the watchword of the Bulldogs. Smith has been a fly in the ointment to the Spokane club for the last three years.

MOSCOW, Ida., Nov. 27.—UP—Little Willis Smith, dynamic but diminutive quarterback for the Idaho Vandals, will be playing his last game as a Vandal Thursday when he leads the Idaho attack against Gonzaga at Spokane. The Vandals are favored, due to the fast pace at which they've been coming along in recent contests.

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 27.—UP—Leighton Gee, called by Coach Frank Callison the "most underrated back on the coast" was back in uniform today and went through a practice session at his signal calling post at right half. Gee suffered an injured ankle in the U. S. C. game, but will probably be fit for the Ducks' contest with St. Mary's at San Francisco Thanksgiving Day.

CHEVALIER IS BOOKED AT FOX THEATER TODAY

Maurice Chevalier in his newest picture, "The Way To Love" heads a double program opening at the Fox theater today. Jack Holt co-starring with Fay Wray in "Master of Men" a stirring he-man drama of a steel worker's rise to fame and fortune through sheer grit and courage, is the extra feature.

"The Way To Love" has for its locale gay Paris. Trading his usual military uniform for that of a guide for a large Parisian tourist agency Chevalier is right at home in his new role. He takes one into the roof-top dwellings and musical halls of Paris' left bank.

His romantic journey leads him to Ann Dvorak, lonely street urchin who is the target for a villainous looking knife-thrower. They fall in love, and from then on the story concerns the pitfalls they encounter in their struggle to happiness.

With the star and Miss Dvorak appear Edward Everett Horton, Arthur Pierson, Minna Gombell, John Miljan and Sidney Toler. Several new Chevalier songs are introduced.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 27.—UP—The secret of Rosemary Ames' success is to her, life's greatest mystery. If she were asked how she came to be in Hollywood with a contract Rosemary would adhere to the truth and say she did not know.

This does not mean her secret is a mystery to Fox studio executives who brought her here and who entertain pronounced ideas about her future. They took one look at Rosemary's screen test and handed her a career on a silver salver.

The way it all happened, you see, was this: She once was a Chicago schoolgirl who looked on the horizon life with longing. School plays and all that, and then, suddenly, a chance to go to London.

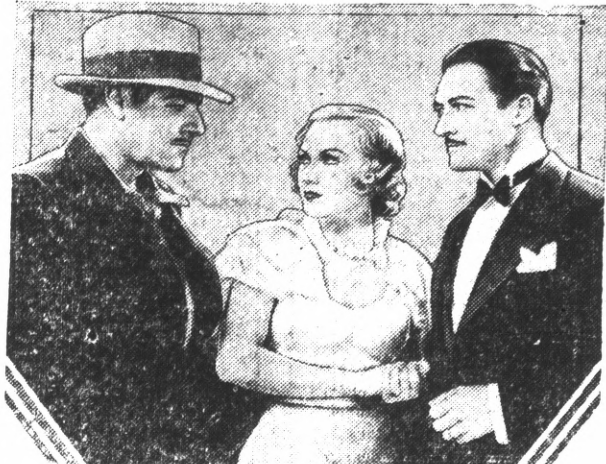

There was something of a coincidence in her first stage role. Coming from a family of newspaper folk, it just had to be that Rosemary got a part of the London presentation of "Five Star Final."

Six years of London, play after play, was Rosemary's history. Last May she returned to New York and appeared in a production at Easthampton. After that everything was a mystery.

"All I know," she said, "was that one day the picture people came to me with a contract. I don't know when they saw me or anything."

NEW YORK No. 27. "Shoemaker, stick to your last" said an old-time wise man. F. Wynne elaborated on that recently, adding: "Joke stick to your jokes."

The hilarious clown has not divulged exactly how much dough he sank in the Amalgamated Broadcasting chain. The quotations run anywhere from $2,000 to a million. At any rate, Wynne completed the triumvirate of big comics who have lost heavily when they attempted to conquer new fields; Cantor and Pearl are the other two.

About five months ago we sat with Jack Pearl in the humble seat of his swanky roadster and heard him tell how he had dropped a fortune in the Street and in various lines of business.

"If radio didn't go for me," he confessed to us, "I'd have been ruined. From now on every dime I ever make will go right in the bank. Hereafter I take no chances. I'm a comedian—not a business man."

It happened at Columbus Circle, where they boys with the telescopes offer you a close-up of Mars at 10 cents per week. A fellow ankle up to the telescope and peered through it for perhaps ten minutes. Finally, disgusted, he turned to the operator.

"And how about the 10 cents, mister?" inquired the telescope. "None," answered the customer. "She pulled down the shade."

Acclaim For The Crooner
Every year the New York Anti-Visitation society buys up a mess of gold cups and blue ribbons and awards them to does who have distinguished themselves for bravery during the past year. We dropped over to the Astor, where the ceremony took place last Saturday, and we were amazed at the presence of a tiny little Pekinese, Ming Toy.

Some Chinese Music Professor
The other night at the Hollywood Rudy Valtie celebrated the fourth anniversary of his radio program. The room was full to overflowing with friends and well-wishers of the guy who had the bravery to label himself unashamedly "The Vazabond Lover."

The room was populated by the same gentlemen of the press who consumed paragraph upon paragraph in an attempt to make Rudy feel ridiculous years ago. The other night they came to pay tribute. Rudy has been mobbed by angry boy friends who felt that the crooner and alienated the girl friends' affections. Eggs have bounced from his clothes. Vegetables have been hoveled at him in Boston. His backers, back there during the years of struggle, were legion.

The other night we realized that this department, would gladly go through twice the abuse that Rudy did, for that two million bucks he has stored away in a downtown bank. He is America's fourth greatest industry.

Jim Tibbett, genial salesman brings his pretty wife Mary to New York to seek his fortune. He bumbles his way from one situation into another and finally with the help of his wife becomes a director in the Perfect Vacuum Company whose machines he once sold. With a good job and excellent salary Jim invests in real estate and builds a lovely English manor home. But he has been duped by a gang of racketeers. Jim uses an unusual method to beat the gangsters and for his work in clearing the real estate field of racketeers he is presented with a beautifully furnished colonial home in Everglades, a Long Island suburb. The gift is made with appropriate ceremony by Realty's Association of New York. Then a stranger reveals to the Tibbetts that Jim is descended from a famous Spanish family, even offering to produce Jim's cousin, Prince Estibetan. Mary is delighted with all this because she figures it will aid them climb the social ladder. They stage a dinner party for Prince Estibetan.

CHAPTER XXVIII
THE Tibbetts were getting wealthier every day, and were crashing society at a pace that would make you dizzy. Mary had severed her own Wall Street connections, and was following up her successful dinner party by a masquerade ball. And the Prince Estibetan was one of the family now.

It was on the afternoon preceding the ball that Mary had two unexpected guests. One was the socially prominent Miss Cynthia Perkins. The other was old Silas Heaven, who long ago had been her Sunday School teacher in Clatsburg.

Miss Perkins had come to make certain inquiries concerning the prince, to whom she had plighted her troth, and to enlist Mary's aid in sidetracking her brother, George Perkins, who opposed the union. It was perhaps as well that Mary did not know what Jim knew concerning Ignacio's bullying career, so she did not need to upset the course of true love.

"How sweet!" she said to Miss Perkins' confidences, while she studied the diamonds that glittered in Miss Perkins' hair.

"Yes, but my brother is determined to interfere. He wants my half of the family fortune to go some day to his daughter Emmeline!"

"But I have determined to do as I please! I may even elope with the prince, if necessary."

"Well!"
"Is my brother coming to the ball?"
"Yes, he and his wife and Emmeline are coming."

"Well, tonight, Jim and I are giving a big masquerade ball!"
It took Mr. Heaven some little time to regain his normal composure—but in the end he was thoroughly won over. He even went so far as to allow Jim to wear a Spanish bull-fighter's costume from the prince, for him to wear to the ball.

And the prince, after one more glimpse of old Silas Heaven, decided to disguise himself as a Western farmer in red wig and overalls.

For the masquerade ball, he had the proper jazz atmosphere. Long Island's younger set had accepted the invitation on the rumor that a nephew of ex-King Alphonse would be there. Jim had hired the orchestra from the Crazy Club to come out and burst bubbles.

Bob Hawkins, forgiven for his oil well errors, was there garbed as a pirate. And Florida made a lovely Helen of Troy.

Jim was a Spanish courtier's costume, and Mary made a blonde but very bewitching Isabella. Identities were hidden behind masks.

All the same, while Qu. Isabella was dancing with her courtier, she whispered: "Jim, I positively caught Mr. Heaven flirting! Now fancy that!"

"Old white sepulchre! Who with, Mary?"
"I don't know! I couldn't make her out! Someone tall, in a Turkish harem costume!"

"Fine going on for a Sunday School teacher!"
"There they are now, Jim! Who is she?"

"Darned if I know! Gosh, Mary—it couldn't be Miss Perkins!"

AT THAT very moment the bull-fighting Mr. Heaven whispered something in the lady's ear, and they departed onto the veranda. At the same instant the prince, in black tux and red hair, glided past them in a walk, with someone who was not his "thy fiancée."

As the dance came to an end, Ignacio and his companion, in their turn, disappeared into the darkness of the porch.

"Jim, I believe Prince Ignacio was with Miss Perkins' niece Emmeline!" Mary whispered. "And if you ask me, there's something up! That may have been Miss Perkins in the Turkish pants. She is eloping with the prince and taking Emmeline and Mr. Heaven along as witnesses. I feel it! I have a hunch!"

Women's hunches are usually right. As the next dance started, George Perkins came rushing up to Mary.

"Where has my sister gone?"
"He wasn't worried about his daughter Emmeline."

"Gone?"
"She's disappeared. She's eloped!"

"Oh—what makes you think so?"
"Perkins and his wife hurried wildly toward the dark veranda. Presently their car could be heard backing out of the drive."

Mary was much disturbed.

"Jim, I really think she has eloped. And I'm afraid her brother will start after her and find her. We oughtn't to leave her without warning."

"What can we do?"
"Get the car out, Jim. There are so many people here they won't miss it. I think I know who will perform the ceremony. Let's slip over there and bring the bride party back after the wedding."

But somehow, the hint of an elopement had spread throughout the gathering. As Jim and Mary hopped in their car and got out the drive, several cars prepared to follow. The whole masquerade party, in fact, thrilled with the prospect of this new excitement, rushed after them to the wedding.

Jim took a short cut over to Justice Brown's house. It was brightly lighted. Two cars were parked outside. Breathlessly, they hopped out and ran to the door.

AS THE maid opened it for them, they caught sight of Miss Perkins, in harem garb, minus her mask. Just behind her was Prince Ignacio.

"Thank heaven!" Mary sighed. "Miss Perkins smiled."

"I am so delighted you came!" she said. "But I am not Miss Perkins any longer."

Her voice was drowned in a confusion of sounds, as the door burst open again, this time to admit her angry brother and his wife, and close behind them, the whole company of masqueraders.

EXECUTORS
ARE UPHELD
BY THE COURT

MARTINEZ, Nov. 27.—Following an extended hearing today at which an agreement for payment was reached, Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie discharged an order to executors of the $1,178,188 estate of Mrs. Bernice Blanche Rudgear directing them to show cause why they had not paid $150 monthly to Mrs. Florence Chaffee McLeod of San Francisco, one of the devisees of Mrs. Rudgear's will.

Mrs. McLeod, whom her attorney described as "being on charity" in San Francisco, had demanded an accounting of the executors.

Judge McKenzie, after hearing a lengthy report upon estate affairs declared that he believed the executors M. T. Vandervell and James E. Leahy, "are acting in good faith" in handling the estate.

Mrs. McLeod charged that the executors were $2,200 in arrears in paying to her a life annuity provided in Mrs. Rudgear's will and demanded that the executors set aside capital assets to meet the terms of the will.

The executors made arrangement to pay $150 to Mrs. McLeod and agreed to pay the balance due her to date.

In reciting estate affairs, the executors pointed out that it possesses 23,000 shares of Simmons company stock and to dump that amount of stock on the market would drive the price down. They said some shares of stock had been sold and that $82,000 in state taxes had been paid and $49,000 in taxes remain to be met. They defended their action in non-sale of stock by exhibiting a telegram from the Simmons company declaring that there was expectation of resumption of dividends and said that if sales were made in any appreciable amount at low prices none of the devisees of the estate would receive the amounts due them.

"The military and naval reservations which the United States may retain in the Philippines after independence (under the rejected act) is incompatible with true independence," Quezon added.

Quezon was asked if the islands feared aggression of other countries when United States protection had been withdrawn.

"In this world we don't know what might happen," she shrugged.

Your Good HEALTH

By CLAUD N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

Household Accumulations Make Germ Breeding Places

THE possibilities of carbon monoxide poisoning by the fumes in our gas grates or auto engines is not the only danger that follows the approach of cold weather. Somehow when the temperature begins to drop we seem inclined to shut the doors and windows with a bang and huddle ourselves up as if we had suddenly moved to a different climate. We begin at once to lose some of the invigorating effects of the abundant fresh air and sunshine of the summer months. We need to offset this decreasing warmth in the air by adding slightly to our clothing and by getting frequent deep full breaths of out door air.

MOST of us in the temperate zone are getting our dwellings in shape for the winter. Special precaution is needed in opening up grates that have been in disuse and in re-installing gas heating equipment. Chimneys should be free of soot and every pipe that carries combustible gases should be carefully inspected. It is very easy to have joints loosened and vent pipes slipped out of place, during the warm season. There are very reliable systems of vacuum cleaning now available which will draw all dust and soot out of every aperture of your heating and ventilating plant. It will be done, too, at a very reasonable cost.

IF THIS hasn't been done in the spring, it should certainly be done before starting the furnace for the winter. It will make a surprising lot of difference in the ease with which your house can be kept clean, and since disease is usually traceable to some form of dirt, pure air in the home will aid in reducing the hazards of illness. Much of the tendency to take cold with the onset of cooler weather is the inclination to shut up our houses and to poke around in the accumulated dust and ashes of the grates and furnaces.

WHEN moving to a new home, be especially careful that your predecessor has left no uncapped gas lines or rubbish of any sort. Children like nothing better than to pick over some discarded belongings which are often left behind instead of being destroyed. It might amaze some good housekeepers to know what potential illnesses are stored in our cluttered attics. Many disease germs are capable of living for years if left undisturbed. Then when for any reason, light and warmth reach them they are ready for action.

IF THE modern tendency to build small apartments and much smaller houses does cramp us somewhat it will at any rate leave us less able to hoard such endless heaps of worthless things. Mice and moths are a source of great damage to these unused accumulations but worse than that, they attract vermin, like roaches, which travel to every part of the house and carry any bacteria over which they may pass. If your storage room has any damp spots, there will be molds which are also fine media for germ growths.

AS YOU put your home in order for the next season, cast a fine appraising eye over all your belongings and see just how much of your baggage you can dispose of and never miss it. This is a good time to do it for someone else can probably use the very articles for which you have no further need.

QUESTION: Mr. J. H. B. I am much troubled with cracks in the ends of my thumbs and first fingers. What can I do for them?

ANSWER: These fissures are due sometimes to carelessness and again to a diseased condition. Strict cleanliness is necessary first. After washing carefully soften with a good salve. Use a carbolic salve if there is any infection. Where the fissure is deep, use a very narrow strip of adhesive tape to hold the edges together. Wear finger stiffs to keep out soil and retain moisture in the skin until healing takes place.

HOT OIL WILL HELP PREVENT BRITTLE NAILS

By JACQUELINE HUNT

OOWWW! There goes another fingernail! Just a reminder that you must take extra care of your hands from now until spring if you want your manicure to last the week out and if you want hands that will be a credit to you over the bridge table or when you go to that special party some night!

Warm and humid weather during the summer or helped to keep your cuticles soft and your fingernails flexible, but winter with its cold winds and bitter weather dries out all the natural oils and if you want really lovely hands you must care for them and replenish the oils daily. Housework and liquid nail polish seem to conspire with the freezing weather to make your cuticles dry and raised and your nails brittle.

First of all check up on this matter of household soaps. You know you can get gentle flakes or soap granules that will do your washing and cleaning efficiently with a minimum of harm to your hands. To combat the weather wear gloves whenever you go out and exercise your hands to improve their circulation. To overcome the dryness caused by weather, water and liquid polishes, soak your nails in hot olive oil to prevent their breaking.

You can keep your fingernails fairly long with safety—even in the winter if you try this trick several times during the week. If you type, lot, or play the piano make this soaking a regular beauty rite the year around. Also, after your manicure, work the cuticles back gently and apply a cuticle oil with your orange stick wrapped in cotton. Do you know the lovely ruby-colored oil that smells so pleasantly of rose petals? It's the nicest thing I know for keeping your nails lovely but a little of your nourishing cream worked into your fingertips and around your nails will also keep the cuticles soft and the nails flexible.

You can keep your liquid polish intact and nice looking from one weekly manicure to the next by observing the simple trick of having the nails perfectly clean and free from oil, cream or soap, when you are applying the polish. Always use a cuticle oil or nourishing cream after applying the liquid polish. If your nails tend to be a little rough or to have ridges on them, always buff them vigorously with a powder polish before applying the liquid. And always remember to use an emery board for filing brittle nails. The operation takes longer but there is less danger of breaking or splitting.

Finish the hands so they are velvety smooth and white and lovely with a special hand cream or lotion. For evening women frequently finish their arms and hands with foundation or vanishing cream and a light dusting of powder, but this is to be avoided if your hands are very plump or otherwise unattractive. There are several good hand creams, but some of them are a little drying for regular use and must be supplemented with rich creams or ointments containing emollient.

Coarse pores are beauty blemishes that cause a lot of unhappiness for thousands of women. Their treatment consists of twice daily soapy scrubbing followed by a warm rinse and a brisk ice rub. Morning treatment may be followed by witch hazel or any liquid commercial astringent applied with a pad of absorbent cotton. Check up on the diet too, no heavy rich gravies, no pastries, no fatty meats or fried foods but more fruit juices, raw and cooked vegetables and green salads. Do not use oily cosmetics but gently toning, slightly drying ones, since the coarse pores are usually caused by oiliness.

Mint gelatin colored green and to which pineapple and celery have been added makes an attractive and tasty salad.

Time is saved in making sandwiches by blending the sandwich filling with the creamed butter.

The best recipe for making housework easy is to induce every member of the family to help by putting away things he has used and keeping his own possessions in order.

One-half to one teaspoon of soda to one cup of sour milk is a satisfactory proportion in most recipes that call for sour milk.

BAKE HOLIDAY FAVORITES NOW

By JUDITH WILSON

WITH two of the grandest holidays of all the year approaching with appalling swiftness, our thoughts turn to the traditional rich, sweet fruit cakes and plum puddings to add their goodness to our Thanksgiving and Christmas menus and to gift boxes. Make up a quantity of light and dark fruit cake and a pudding or two, now when you are not so rushed.

Their flavor will be improved by "aging" and they will be appreciated during busy holidays when friends take the liberty of dropping in unannounced at all hours of the day and night.

Fruit Cakes

My favorite of all the fruit cakes, is this white one. Try a slice of it with a cup of tea and tell me if anything could be more perfect! To make it, sift cake flour, measure four cups and add one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon soda. Sift together three times. In a separate bowl mix one pound of sultana raisins, one-half pound citron, finely cut, one-half pound each of crystallized orange peel, lemon peel, pineapple and red cherries, finely cut. Sift one cup of flour over the fruit and mix thoroughly. Cream one cup of butter or other shortening with one and one-half cups sugar until light and fluffy. Add the remaining flour mixture to the creamed mixture a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add one tablespoon lemon juice, the fruit and one pound of blanched almonds finely cut. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of ten eggs. Pour into a paper-lined tube pan or into small breadpans 2 x 2 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches. Bake in a slow oven for two and one-half hours, then increase heat for fifteen minutes. This recipe makes six pounds of fruit cake.

Spicy Fruit Cake

Those who like your fruit cake dark and spicy should try this recipe: Sift and measure five cups of cake flour, add two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon soda and two teaspoons each of cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. Sift together three times to mix thoroughly. Cream two cups butter or other shortening and add two cups sugar. Cream until fluffy. Add the yolks of eight eggs beaten until light, then one tablespoon molasses and one cup of sour milk. Combine half of the flour with this mixture, add one cup of grape juice and beat well, then add the remaining flour mixed with the following fruits: six cups raisins, one and one-half cups each of currants, figs and citron, finely cut, three cups chopped apple and four cups of chopped nut meats. Fold in the whites of eight eggs, stiffly beaten. Bake in two well-greased loaf pans

New York—Women manage to look prosperous, not to say affluent, and whether they go in for the neat, without benefit of fur types of costume, or whether they are literally buried under furs, they are worth looking at. There has been such a tremendous change, especially around the neckline, that the whole fashion picture has new interest. The small collars of other years have more or less disappeared. In their place are high little standing or scarf collars and any number of cape and capelet effects, not to mention reverse, which, especially when they are used very chic.

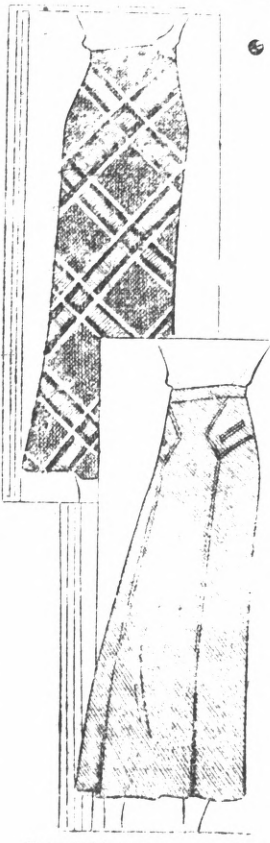

High Necklines There are women who are still protesting against these more or less high collared effects, but if one persists one is sure to find some sort of high neckline that is possible.

We also attempt to draw your attention to the effective ways of wearing, spangles, sequins and such things are being introduced. It is the smart thing to wear these close to the neck, and also on the sleeves, leaving body lines to speak for themselves.

Two types of necklines are especially important, and both expose the shoulders. One involves the drop-shoulder line with detail at the arm, and the other introduces strap and halter arrangement. Evening gowns are very bare as to backs, and dinner gowns are cut deeply at the back or slashed.

Crinkled Velvet One of the most popular dresses this season is in crinkled velvet with ostrich or marabou collar introduced to give a drop-shoulder line, and it is a favorite with party shops up and down the coast. It is a good standard, raised at the knee and also at the shoulders of jackets and dresses.

In their colorings of formal fashion, smart shops are making room for promotions to velvet and lamb, the latter often in accents.

"Neutral" cream or liquid shoe polish may be used for cleaning leather upholstery.

Lines, curtains and drapes should be allowed to soak in cold water to which borax has been added as a water softener before laundering. Use a mild soap and warm water, and as lines like silk require gentle handling.

Scrambled eggs are improved, especially if milk has been used to "stretch" the eggs, if bread crumbs are added. Any of the dry packaged cereals may be used in place of bread crumbs.

Pie crust will brown beautifully if a teaspoonful of sugar is added to the pie dough. This amount of sugar will not sweeten the taste of the crust.

You and Your Child

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

TRY TO MEET CHILD HALFWAY

HAPPY family life is a beautiful ideal. Every parent desires it. But in most families, especially where there are several growing children, each with his own personality and ideas, dissension is open and rift. Why should brothers hate sisters? Why should members of the same family rub each other wrong? Here if you would seem.

MRS. GOWARD

Here should be a bond of understanding. When families do not get along, it is not in practice every instance it is because they do not know how, and not because they do not want to.

Each child gets his cue in manners and attitudes from the parents. For example, a mother sets a pattern in behavior for younger children toward a big brother by approving of his interests. Take stamp-collecting. She doesn't have to know a thing about stamps, but if she assigns a special safe place for the stamp book or provides him with a small box for loose stamps, she is treating the matter as important. Likewise, when a child reveals an interest in the opposite sex, she acts wisely if she buys him hair pomade and helps him make himself attractive. Any review of the ancient laws of gradual progress toward a more liberal view of the Sabbath was largely responsible for the passage of the second reading. The majority, however, was only 16 and compromises were found to be unavoidable due to the bitter opposition.

Child Needs to Be Trusted Most of us are not wholeheartedly in sympathy with the aims and moods of childhood. To be sure, we want children to be happy, but unfortunately we want them to be happy "our" way. Thus instead of giving our cooperation, we act against a natural inclination of desire on their parts.

Why should we be so quick to chastise and curb natural impulses? It looks suspiciously as if we take parenthood more seriously than we take the children. For after all, if parents really did have a more thoughtful regard for their children, they would be more inclined to hold them responsible for their actions. They would have confidence in the children's ability to act wisely in their own behalf. The solution obviously is in compromise, in being able to meet each other halfway. The habit is worth cultivating.

Oliver Stanley, Lord Derby's Son Eyes Prime Ministry

FRIENDS and foes alike seem to agree that Oliver Stanley, 31, a young Conservative, will some day be Great Britain's Prime Minister. Thirty-seven years old, the handsome, eloquent and wealthy World War hero, serving as Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Home Office, is a thin replica of his famous and rather genial father, Lord Derby, the Unlucky King of Lancashire.

He was born with a silver spoon in his mouth. Stanley has moved leisurely along, carefully conditioning himself, well-aware that Prime Ministers are made, not born. He is ably supported in his ambition by his wife, Lady Maureen Stanley, one of North Ireland's most beautiful women. Since 1924, Stanley has held a seat in the House of Commons, as a member from Westminster.

In appearance, young Stanley resembles his father, in the shape of his head and the turn of his features, but unlike his sport-loving father, he is of normal build, middle height with square shoulders, appearing somewhat stocky. His eyes are brown and his brown hair is beginning to streak with gray.

Epigrammatic wit is Stanley's specialty. One of his most famous encounters in the House of Commons occurred in 1930, during the Labor Government's administration. The House was debating the then Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden's budget. He looked back and forth at Snowden until the Chancellor, unable to endure it any longer, yelled scornfully: "Guinea Pig!"

The House was thrown into an uproar and strong disapproval of Snowden was uttered from many sides, but Snowden's remark had not been distinctly understood and the Speaker let the matter rest. Young Stanley with perfect poise, won the House's esteem and continued the biting attack on the Labor Government's expenditures.

STANLEY was born in 1896, the second son of the 17th Earl of Derby. He studied at Eton and when the World War broke, he joined the Royal Artillery. He fought with the Allied armies for three years, was severely wounded and won the Military Cross and the Croix de Guerre. When the Armistice was signed he had risen to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

After the war, Stanley became affiliated with his uncle, Lord Charles Montagu, one of England's wealthiest financiers. He also became an attorney. He has risen high in the ranks of England's young Conservatives who stand for modern reforms in industry and education. His view is that social reforms should and must come about, but his policy suggests that he would prefer it to be in a leisurely manner.

Originally, Stanley stood for Free Trade, because by tradition and conviction, his family had been free traders, but he has changed his mind now, and believes in tariffs, "because of the inexorable march of events."

His goal, he frankly admits is No. 10 Downing Street, the home of England's Prime Ministers. Being a young man still, he feels he has plenty of time to realize his ambition and in the meantime, he is leisurely trying to prove his right to that seat of the mighty in the affairs of the British Empire.

DER WOMEN NOWADAYS CAN BE SUCCESSSES

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

TIME was, when a woman was old at forty. If she did not have an income sufficient for her needs, and the needs of an old woman of forty were supposed to be very meager indeed, she became dependent on some relative. Praises be, that sort of thing has passed. If the war and the turbulent days after it brought us nothing else, it did bring women of the great age of forty and older as much of a right to live their lives, and a chance to live, as the younger women.

ABOUT a week ago, Ida M. Tarbell took time off from her busy day to admit the fact that it happened to be her 76th birthday and what was her comment? "As if a 76th birthday were an event; it certainly isn't in my life," she declared. And anyone who thinks she allowed it to handicap her many activities is entirely wrong. Probably it is Miss Tarbell's tremendous interest in current events that keeps her, from remembering that 76 is a ripe age in any community. "At night, if I am tired working on my book or some article I have been doing, I read detective stories," she explained. Leaving knitting for the young, we take it.

THEN there is that grand old party Marie Dressler, the greatest box office attraction of them all, or was until Mae West invited the world to come up sometime—may be yet, for all I really know. Miss Dressler is a young thing of 62 or 64, and also had a birthday celebration a short time ago. She was treated as lightly as one could possibly treat over half a century of living. In Miss Dressler's case, a half century of progress, when it isn't often that one becomes an international favorite at sixty. Not that Marie Dressler did not have "her public" when she was much younger, but it is pleasant to record that her success in life has grown with her mellowing years.

WITHOUT half trying, almost anyone can list a number of women who are going strong to and beyond the allotted span of life. Three score years and ten still totals seventy, but you wouldn't know it by listening to, or looking at, many great women in the public eye today. And it isn't done with mirrors plus paint and powder either. It's done by keeping young in spirit, active mentally and physically, and, of course, one's body in as good condition as such a long used body can be kept.

HOW these old has-beens of forty must have hated it in the generations that sat around in black bombazine and false fronts, knitting or doing the family mending, instead of being groomed and wearing the smartest clothes and turning down as any invitations as any other members of the family. A bride at forty was new to those who—not so today, as any clerk in the Marriage License Bureau will tell you.

SCIENTISTS hold out all sorts of encouragement for the longevity of the race. It's a ghastly thought to outlive one's usefulness, interest or enjoyment of life. Yet given our faculties and enough hair and teeth for all practical purposes, not to mention a capacity for enjoying the joke which life probably becomes at a great age, what better fate could we ask, providing, of course, we are not either destitute or entirely alone.

IF TODAY is your birthday, or it happens that you are feeling as ancient as the everlasting hills, having discovered the first gray hair, for instance, or a thought and take courage from these women who have forgotten the date of their birth and, what's more important, still have the world to forget it.

Refinishing Brass Bed

First wash your bed with soap and water and dry well, then sandpaper to remove high finish. Get a first quality walnut enamel varnish stain from any reliable paint dealer. A pint size can usually will do, allowing three coats. Apply with a brush that has very soft bristles in the same manner as you would for wood. Let each coat dry thoroughly before applying another. The first coat will not look perfect but the second and third applications will.

CHARITY RACES BRING $700 TO EL CERRITO

As the result of $700 that was turned over to the council of El Cerrito from the charity races that were held Sunday, the El Cerrito council Monday night, extended a vote of thanks to the dog owners—the employees of the track, and John J. Jerome for the use of the kennel club property.

On a motion of Councilman W. F. Huber, $350 will be turned over to the unemployment committee and $350 be divided between the P. T. A. of Fairmont, Harding and Stege.

It was first suggested that the entire amount be turned over to the committee but Councilman Peter Larsen said that the P. T. A. organizations were in closed touch with the needs of the children. DANCE PERMIT

A permit was granted the El Cerrito Kennel Club to hold dances Saturday nights instead of Tuesday nights as formerly granted.

The vote on the motion was ayes: Mayor J. R. Beck, Phil A. Lee and W. F. Huber; noes: Peter Larsen and Hans M. Nissen.

Nissen and Larsen stated that allowing the kennel club to hold dances on Saturday kept patrons away from other business houses in the city and they were against the motion.

Application of W. H. Pichart to hold dancing nightly at the Rancho San Pablo starting December 15th was referred to Chief of Police R. R. Cheek for one week for investigation.

SPECIAL OFFICER
Harold McCormick was appointed as a special officer to work at the El Cerrito Kennel Club on a motion of Councilman Phil A. Lee. The appointment was made to fill a vacancy on the track force of special policemen.

A motion by Police Commissioner Hans M. Nissen to have M. L. Ingram of Berkeley appointed was lost by a vote of three to two. Mayor J. R. Beck and Councilman Phil A. Lee and W. F. Huber, who voted against the motion, stated they would not vote for the appointment of an out of town man. Nissen and Councilman Peter Larsen voted for the motion.

Another motion made by Nissen for the appointment of Jack Ritten as special officer at the track was lost by the same vote when

Hanging Tree

SEEKING a souvenir of the first lynching in California in 13 years, a San Jose youth cuts the limb from the tree where, Sunday night, Jack Holmes paid with his life for the confessed kidnaping and slaying of Brooke Hart, wealthy San Jose youth. Holmes and his companion, Thomas Thurmond, were taken from their cells in the San Jose jail and hanged to trees in an adjoining park.

The dissenting councilmen stated that only one vacancy existed and that had already been filled.

Church Men Club Will See Photos

National park pictures will be shown at the meeting of the Mens club of the Central Methodist church this evening. Jack Lee, local photographer, will exhibit the pictures.

The meeting will open with a 6:15 dinner. C. E. Carlock will be chairman of the evening. Catherine Bastia will furnish the music.

New Scale Fares Is Effective Soon

With a complete new rate of fares effective December 1—the lowest since the war—railroads in the western part of the United States are making a strong bid for the patronage of the traveling public. The new fares will reduce travel costs from 16.67 to 44.45 per cent and are especially important because they represent a general reduction applicable at all times between all points on all railroads.

Rolph Lauds Lynch Mob; Funeral For Hart Is Conducted

Thurmond's distracted mother appeared on the outskirts of the mob, they saw friends of his boyhood days and classmates from the University of Santa Clara, where he recently was a student.

No Prosecution

It appeared certain hours after the lynching that leaders of the mob would not be prosecuted. Governor Rolph long has been known as an opponent of capital punishment and his clemency toward condemned men is well known. In expiating his attitude in the Hart case, he made clear that kidnapers were not included in his mercy list.

Hart, Paid Honor

Brooke Hart was buried today. To her classmates at Santa Clara university, friends and relatives attended the simple Jewish services at the Hart family mansion on the Alameda.

Rabbi Joseph Karsh of the San Jose congregation, close friend of the slain youth, conducted the services.

Fifty Santa Clara students formed a guard of honor as the steel casket was carried to a hearse. Rabbi Karsh concluded the services at the Memorial cemetery with a prayer for the dead. Kadish, Jewish prayer for the dead, Kadish.

Holmes Protested

Holmes' father, Maurice Holmes, a San Jose tailor for 29 years, definitely protested the character of his son. He was joined by his wife and by the widow and two small children of the lynch victim.

"Our boy was innocent," Holmes said. "They forced him to confess to something he never did. They told him if he did not confess they would turn him over to the mob. The mob that finally got him. We know he was innocent. We know where he was that night. I can prove almost every minute of it." Mrs. Holmes, white faced, but in complete control of her emotions, said she was glad her son did not cringe or beg for mercy, like that other one.

Mother Believes Him

"He was innocent and if it takes until we join him in death, we will prove it to the world," the mother said.

Identification of the mob leaders is necessary before any investigation can be made of the lynching, according to District Attorney Fred Thomas.

"I am waiting for Sheriff Emig's detailed account as to what really happened," Thomas said. "So far everything I know about this is garbled and lacking authority. I wasn't there, you know."

Emig Injured

Sheriff Emig and Jailer Howard Buffington were in a San Jose hospital. Both suffered serious head injuries, according to Dr. C. J. Arnold, who said X-ray pictures will be taken. Both men, he said, were weak from shock and exhaustion from battling the mob.

Sheriff Emig and Buffington were the most seriously injured of seven men hurt in the storming of the jail. The others suffered from tear gas or cuts and bruises. One newspaper photographer was saved twice by reporters when a mobster drew a revolver in an effort to prevent him from taking pictures of the swinging bodies.

Hanged In Nude

Thurmond and Holmes were hanged, the latter nude, in St. James Park, only a few blocks from San Jose State College where Holmes once was an "average student." Both families had homes nearby. According to some reports

Thurmond's distracted mother appeared on the outskirts of the mob, they saw friends of his boyhood days and classmates from the University of Santa Clara, where he recently was a student.

Thurmond was terror stricken when the mob battered down the jail door with a huge oil pipe after defying tear bombs thrown by officers. He was found clinging to bars across the ceiling in a lavatory off his cell.

Try Pose

He cried out that he was another prisoner. Holmes, braver in the face of mob death, tried the same ruse. He fought his captors all the way to the park, his clothing was ripped off as he was dragged along by the feet. Men shot their fists into his face and kicked him. Thurmond also was beaten and his trousers were pulled off by milling men, women and children.

Thurmond appeared in a stupor—almost unconscious—as a rope was fixed around his neck. He stumbled incoherently as leaders of the mob demanded he "quit playing possum."

Holmes made a last minute effort to persuade the mob to spare him. They laughed down his remarks and he shrugged his shoulders, accepting the fact he must die.

Body Was Found

The death scene in the park was enacted less than 12 hours after two duck hunters found Hart's body floating in the bay. The discovery ended a search which started November 9 the night the youth disappeared.

Holmes and Thurmond were arrested on November 16 when officers tapped a telephone line on which the latter was demanding $40,000 from the elder Hart. Thurmond implicated Holmes. Finally, officers obtained full confessions from them. They told how Hart was bound by wire, weighted down with cement blocks and struck on the head. His unconscious form then was thrown into the bay from the San Mateo bridge, the confessions said.

Drink Contest To Be Held Dec. 9th

CARNEL, Nov. 27 (UP)—Mayor John Catlin, presiding executive of the great mixing contest to be climaxed December 9 with selection of America's best 20 drinks, decided today that his judges should go into strict training. "Entries are coming in so rapidly that we will have 300 drinks to select from," said the mayor of fun-loving Carnel. "Why no man in the world could sample 300 drinks and be on his feet at the end of the evening."

The contest is sponsored by the National Association for the Advancement of the Fine Arts of Drinking.

Pleads With Mob

SHERIFF WILLIAM EMIG of Santa Clara county (indicated by arrow) at the doors of the San Jose jail Sunday night pleading with an infuriated mob of 5000 to stop attempts to lynch the confessed kidnapers and slayers of Brooke Hart. Shortly after this picture was taken the sheriff was carried from the scene, victim of tear gas and a blow on the head, and the mob gained entrance to the jail. Jack Holmes and Thomas Thurmond were hanged.

DANCE HOURS ARE FIXED IN EL CERRITO

Closing hours of 2 a. m. on week days and 3 a. m. on Sundays and holidays for dancing were fixed by the council of El Cerrito at its meeting Monday night. These restrictions will be inserted in the ordinance which will probably be given its first reading at the next meeting.

After much discussion by the council and people in the audience the council passed a motion made by Councilman W. F. Huber setting the closing hours and providing the applicant for a permit must be a citizen and be recommended by the chief of police, after investigation. The vote on the motion was ayes: Phil A. Lee, W. F. Huber and J. R. Beck; noes:

Peter Larsen and Hans M. Nissen.

A petition signed by forty-four businessmen asking the hours be set at 2 a. m. on week nights and 4 a. m. on Sundays and holidays was presented. It also asked that applicants for permits must have resided in El Cerrito for a period of six months.

Harry Botker and C. W. Zimmerman, local businessmen talking in favor of the two and three o'clock closing hours saying it allowed them to obtain business from Oakland.

Police Judge A. G. Thompson and Rev. H. W. Williams of the Methodist church voiced their protests of allowing dancing after one o'clock as it encouraged the influx of undesirables.

TONY CATALBI TELLS STORY OF LYNCHING

I was scared stiff. I was ready to back out. The thing that scared me was seeing the screen to the cell block torn down. I thought, "they'll get us inside there and lock us up for good."

But once the screen crashed, I dashed in and ran up the stairs after some deputy sheriffs. I was the first one of the gang to get on the second floor, where Thurmond was located.

Four or five of us made the first rush for the cell. The deputies pleaded with us not to take the prisoners.

Deputy Buffington, the jailer, with tears streaming down his face, said: "Boys, let us kneel in prayer and pray to God in heaven that you take the right man."

One fellow dropped down in his knees at once in the aisle and all the rest of us fellows of the gang all knelt in silent prayer. Then the prayer was broken up when a drunk guy yelled, "Amen, brother Ben—"

We took the keys away from the deputies and broke into Thurmond's cell on the second floor. We missed seeing him the first two times that we looked. He was hiding up on top of the closet.

When we found him, one of the guys took him down and he fell, struck his head on the floor.

Thurmond never said a word from the time we seized him until he was dead. I think he was taking unconsciousness.

Two officers identified him for us. We dragged him to the park and tried to make him talk. I lifted his eyelids, and his eyes flickered, which showed plainly he was just playing dead or something.

Part of the gang rushed Holmes' cell and he told us he was Pierce, but we hid the words on him.

There was a fellow in the party who knew him and a deputy sheriff also whispered: "Boys, you've got the right fellow."

He said afterwards his name was Johnson, but finally admitted he was Holmes.

The tear gas didn't seem to bother me very much.

The word got spread around that it was going to be a Santa Clara University student lynching. But I'm not a Santa Clara student. I didn't go to college. Probably some of the college boys joined us, but I think we got most of our recruits from speak-easies.

I knew Brooke Hart by sight, but never had spoken to him. I thought that his terrible murder should be avenged.

I found several hundred others thought the same thing.

Three reasons why John Riggs opened a Bank of America savings account . . .

Of all reasons for thrift, few are as good as the three which caused John Riggs to open a savings account with Bank of America. First, there was Mrs. John Riggs. Second, there was Barbara, age six, and third, there was Billy, age three.
